College of Business and Law Scholarships and Prizes Award Ceremony 2023

Monday, 3 April 2023 at 2:30pm
Devere Hall
University College Cork

Welcome Address
Professor Ursula Kilkelly
Head, College of Business and Law
University College Cork

Award recipients introduced by Professor Thia Hennessy
Dean, Cork University Business School
and
Professor Mark Poustie
Dean, School of Law

O'Rahilly Building, UCC.

Dear Students and Guests,

I am delighted to welcome you to our beautiful University campus for today's awards ceremony. This is a special occasion where we celebrate the academic and personal achievements of our students.

At the College of Business and Law, we continue to strive for the highest standards internationally. The Law School is among the world's best law schools, ranked 59th globally and first in Ireland in the 2023 QS World University Subject Rankings. Cork University Business School continues to grow with ambition: its accreditation by both AMBA and AACSB places it in the top 2% of Business Schools worldwide. It is now progressing EQUIS accreditation.

Today's celebration would not be possible without the generosity of our sponsors, partners and donors and we are very grateful for your support over many years. I also acknowledge the Alumni and Development UCC Team which plays a key role in the continuing development of all our scholarships and prizes, for the benefit of our students.

I am pleased to announce two new awards this year.

- The MAcc Accounting Scholarship is awarded on a competitive basis to an incoming MAcc student after submission of a personal statement.
- The James Quirk Memorial Prize in Sports Economics is presented to the student with the best academic performance annually in EC3219 – The Economics of Sport. Supported by the Quirk Estate, this Prize remembers the lifetime of seminal contributions made to the field of sports economics by Professor Quirk, who taught at Caltech and the University of Kansas, and was of Irish descent.

Our awards also include the "Head of College Exceptional Achievement Award", with recipient nominated by the Deans of both Business and Law. It acknowledges a student who has had an extraordinary impact during their time in the College and made a truly unique contribution to student life. In addition, the College provides its own range of Quercus Scholarships at undergraduate level rewarding academic achievement. Leaving Certificate Excellence is acknowledged by the UCC Entrance Scholarships.

The wide range of awards presented reflect the work of the College, its relationships, and its history. For example, today a recipient will receive The Peel Memorial Prize, one of the most historic in the University. In 1861, Sir Robert Peel, then Chief Secretary for Ireland, initiated a fund to augment the endowments of the Queen's Colleges. Queen's College Cork subsequently became University College Cork at the start of the last century. This endowment continues to recognise the exceptional achievement of our students in what is now a very different world.

For all recipients, today's recognition of your outstanding achievements is testament to your excellence and the development of graduate attributes reflective of the University's core values. We congratulate you and wish you every success. Those of you now leaving UCC are encouraged to stay in touch with your lecturers, your programme staff, and your fellow students. Join our Alumni Association to keep current with developments in the College and to stay connected with the University as we continue, with your support, to go from strength to strength.
